

Who is NCAT/NCGMA/NCPFC?

NCGMA and NCPFC are associations which fall under the larger body of Northern California Allied Trades (NCAT). Together, we are the united voice of the finishing trades, representing Bay Area glazing, painting and production contractor companies that employ members of Union District Council 16 (DC16).

What does NCAT/NCGMA/NCPFC do?

As a united association, we leverage the collective voices of our members to advocate, negotiate, educate and connect to support trade industries year-round. The contractor companies we represent range from large corporations to small, family owned businesses. We want to make sure everyone has the opportunity to employ a talented, skilled workforce and work with DC16 to do so.

How do I know if I'm a member of NCAT/NCGMA/NCPFC?

We have active members and passive members. If you are a contractor that employs a DC16 labor workforce, you are automatically a member. Contractor members can become active members by signing an Active Member Agreement, which gives the Association bargaining rights to negotiate on their behalf. Active members also have access to our member network, digital resources and can provide input on important initiatives that impact our industry.

What are the benefits of being a member of NCAT/NCGMA/NCPFC?

We are a powerful platform for businesses of all sizes to be successful, sustainable and drive the future of the industry. There are several benefits to active membership including trainings, networking and advocacy around key issues that impact our trades. For labor negotiations, active members can establish negotiation priorities, get additional insight and input before formal negotiations begin and even join the negotiations committee itself. For more information about membership, contact our team at info@alliedtrades.org [or visit the website].

What else comes with being a member of NCAT/NCGMA/NCPFC?

We are one of the largest trade associations in the country. As a united association, we provide opportunities for professional development like cross-industry training and educational opportunities to strengthen our members' skills and make our members and their employees even more competitive.

We also create a knowledge-sharing environment by connecting our diversely skilled and sized membership, creating a robust network of industries for our members to draw upon. By developing relationships within our Association and outside of it, we make our industries stronger and more resilient.
